Port of Los Angeles Harbor Cup 2011

Cal Maritime Invitational Intercollegiate Regatta

Organized by Los Angeles Yacht Club
San Pedro, Calif.                             March 11-13, 2011

The West Coast's only intercollegiate big boat regatta

USC defends title in Port of L.A. Harbor Cup

SAN PEDRO, Calif. – Feb. 9, 2011 – The Port of Los Angeles is busier than ever, but even the nation's most dynamic shipping operation has time to play as the continuing sponsor of the fourth annual Harbor Cup / Cal Maritime Invitational Intercollegiate Regatta March 11-13.

USC will defend the championship it won last year after placing second to Maine Maritime Academy the previous two years. Los Angeles Yacht Club is the organizing authority and California Maritime Academy of Vallejo is host of the West Coast's only intercollegiate big boat regatta.

Nine teams will compete in up to 10 ocean fleet races over three days, as conditions permit. The coed crews will sail Catalina 37s chartered from the Long Beach Sailing Foundation---the same boats to be match-raced by 10 professional world-class teams in the Congressional Cup March 21-26.

Cal Maritime, second last year, returns with Maine, the U.S. Naval Academy, the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, the University of Hawaii, Cal State U. Channel Islands of Camarillo and two new participants: UC Santa Cruz and the State University of New York (SUNY) Maritime Academy.

USC trains out of the U.S. Sailing Center in nearby Long Beach under Mike Segerblom, a Trojan alum and the center's executive director. The team will have most of its 2010 crew. Skipper/helmsman Chris Vetter and headsail trimmer Andrew Nunn have graduated, but bowman Alex Brock Kraebel, pitman Erik Samuels, main trimmer Kelsey Rupp and trimmer Danny Kivlovitz are back. Segerblom has not yet picked Vetter's successor.

Most college sailors race dinghies, so a limited number of them, one might say, know the ropes on keelboats. No problem.

"Not everybody is keen on it," Segerblom said, "but our team likes it. We're a little lucky that we sail them every summer, but they're pretty simple and straightforward boats."

On the other hand, training people to sail big boats---really big boats---is the business for Cal Maritime and several other competitors, making the event a perfect fit for the Port of Los Angeles sponsor.

But the Keelhaulers from Vallejo may be on more of a mission than anyone. Last year they shared the lead with USC going into the next-to-last race only to get caught on the wrong side of a major wind shift that left them in ninth place for the race and seven points off USC's pace. They made a gritty comeback to win the last race but couldn't prevent USC from placing second for a five-point win overall.

But it wasn't a bad year. Earlier they had won the U.S. Collegiate Kennedy Cup to earn the right to represent the U.S. in last October's World Student Yachting Championships at La Rochelle, France, where they placed fifth among 14 teams from 12 countries, behind England, Switzerland, Portugal and Italy.

Charlie Arms, the school's director of sailing, said, "This year it will be a mix of veterans and freshman. We have several good freshmen on our Offshore Team. They were on the boat for the Shields Trophy win and second at [the 2010] Kennedy Cup."

The Port of Los Angeles is America's premier port and has solidified its esteemed reputation by moving more containers than any other port in the nation, more than doubling its volumes over a 10-year period. It has a strong commitment to developing innovative and sustainable operations that benefit the economy as well as the quality of life for the region and the nation it serves. The Port handled a total of 7,831,902 Twenty-Foot Equivalent Units (20-foot containers or TEUs, including empties) in 2010 and remains the nation’s busiest trade gateway in terms of container volume.

Notice of race and more

2010 race-by-race results, photos and video

2010 high-resolution photos

Event contacts:

EVENT MEDIA CONTACT
Rich Roberts
310.835.2526
310.766.6547
richsail@earthlink.net

LOS ANGELES YC
Jim Morgan
310.489.7222
Jmorgan@portla.org

CALIFORNIA MARITIME ACADEMY

See complete album of 2010 highlights

The competitors
(Click to visit)

Calif. Maritime Academy
Vallejo, Calif.

Cal State U. Channel Islands
Camarillo, Calif.

Maine Maritime Academy
Castine, Maine

SUNY Maritime Academy
Throgs Neck, N.Y.

UC Santa Cruz
Santa Cruz, Calif.

U. of Hawaii
Manoa

U.S. Naval Academy
Annapolis, Md.

USC
Los Angeles, Calif.
Charlie Arms
cell 707.246.0434
carms@csum.edu

PORT OF LOS ANGELES
Phillip Sanfield
Director of Media Relations
310.732.3568
PSanfield@portla.org

U.S. Coast Guard Academy
New London, Conn.